

Who made God?

Good question?

First, some atheists say that we made God. What they mean is that God is an invention of the human mind.

But if we made God, then who made us? You see, trying to get rid of the Creator is not so easy!

Second, others reject the idea that any single being could create our enormously intricate universe. They say that the God we talk about is so complex that he is too improbable to exist. But Christians are comforted by God's immensity! Indeed the Bible asks, "Who can measure . . . God?" Romans 11.33 (Bible for Today). How wonderful that he is able to deal, not just with a merely physical universe, but knows how to resolve the vast and disturbing problems man's sin and waywardness have brought to our world.

A third argument of atheists is that "if no one made God then he can't exist." But while anything that is created necessarily has a beginning, by definition this cannot apply to the Eternal One. So it is a nonsense to ask "Who created the uncreated One?"

And God's eternal existence is clearly a necessity. If there ever was a time when nothing existed, then nothing would exist now!

*

*

*

The psalmist wrote this truth about God: "You have always ruled, and you are eternal."
- Psalm 93.2 (Bible for Today)