

Does God care?

Can the God who created this vast universe be in any way interested in all the small, insignificant details of our personal lives?

First, what could be more insignificant than the number of hairs on one's head? Yet Jesus said “the very hairs of your head are all numbered”! Matthew 10.30.

Second, does God have the slightest interest in our insignificant thoughts? Yes, and this is because He is ready to build on them! He wants “to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we . . . think”! Ephesians 3.20.

Third, does God have the slightest interest in our smallest requests? Yes, and this too is because He is ready “to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask”! Ephesians 3.20.

Fourth, does God care about those who all their life utterly reject His Son, Jesus, right up until a few minutes before they die? Yes. And Jesus always sees that small moment. He sees that small window of opportunity. “Therefore He is also able to save to the uttermost those who come to God through Him.” Hebrews 7.25.

Perhaps God's greatness is seen as much in life's small things as in the magnificence and grandeur of His mighty Creation.

Feeling weak? Just hanging by a thread?

Ready to topple?
